About the Atmo Capsule

A gas capsule test is a noninvasive procedure that uses a small swallowable capsule to measure gases in your digestive system. As the capsule moves through your digestive tract, it collects information and sends it to a receiver. This test helps your provider evaluate how well your digestive system is moving, including conditions such as delayed stomach emptying (gastroparesis) or slow movement of stool through the intestines.

Billing

Listed below is the specific billing code and associated fee for the Atmo Gas Capsule. Although this procedure has been approved by the FDA, it is still considered investigative by some insurance companies and therefore may not be covered. The actual allowed amount (the amount of the billed charge deemed payable by an insurance plan) for each charge and the amount of your out-of-pocket expenses will depend on your particular insurance plan. It is important to check your individual policy and direct any questions to your insurer to determine coverage and your financial responsibility prior to receiving treatment.
